Mrs. Roland Wray To Represent Local Organization At State Convention —About Fifty Are Present.

An appeal for parents to co-operate with the school officials in promoting a program for the best interests of all concerned was sounded by L. E. Ziegler, superintendent, at the opening meeting of the local Parent-Teacher Association in the high school auditorium yesterday afternoon.

About fifty persons were present at the meeting. The program was opened by the singing of America and a prayer by Mrs. Roland Wray. At the business meeting, Mrs. Wray was chosen asa delegate from the local association to the state convention next month.

Mrs. F. A. Bush was in charge of the program which consisted of a piano duet by Harriet Miller and Eva Margaret Frank, a talk on "Why a Parent-Teacher organization?" by Mrs. Emmett Scott, and a talk on "Home Study Problems" by Miss Frances Holliday. Mrs. Bush then conducted a general discussion of home study problems.

In his address, Mr. Ziegler asked for the co-operation of the community in enforcing the compulsory attendance law. Many new families have moved into town since the last enumeration list, Mr. Ziegler said, and added that there was no way of checking up the list without the co-operation of the community.

The faculty of the public schools feels that it has a right to know the reasons for absences, the superintendent said. These absences should be only for personal or family illness or something else equally urgent when the entire school may be dismissed.

Mrs. Roland Wray is president of the organization and the other officers are: Miss Fannie Hope, vice-president; Mrs. T. H. Leet, secretary; and Mrs. Emmett Scott, treasurer. JUNIOR R. C. WORK STARTS

PROJECTS SUGGESTED

Mrs. Fern Crull, Chapter Chairman of Junior Red Cross, Visits Schools This Week.

Several of the grade schools in the towns in the county re-enrolled in the Junior Red Cross department of the Nodaway County Red Cross chapter, others have enrolled for the first time, and will start out in the Junior Red Cross work as soon as the first month's project has been outlined. Mrs. Fern Crull, chapter chairman of the Junior Red Cross of this county is visiting the grade schools this week and has met with favorable response at each school she has visited.

The work that the children will take up for the first month in Junior Red Cross activities has been suggested by Mrs. Crull as a study of the American Red Cross. There are a few schools in the county that re-enrolled for the Junior Red Cross work last spring and Mrs. Crull will also visit these schools and outline the suggestions as to the study of the American Red Cross to the teachers who are privileged to take up this work in the manner they deem best.

Seven of the schools have already enrolled 100 per cent. Those Mrs. Crull has enrolled this week are at Conception Junction, 100 per cent; Ravenwood, all but one grade; Burlington Junction, 100 per cent; and Graham, Skidmore, Guilford, Barnard and St. Mary's at Maryville, which were re-enrolled last spring 100 per cent.

The schools to take up the Junior Red Cross work for the first time that she organized this week are Holy Family School at Conception; Clearmont, 100 per cent; and Quitman, 100 per cent.

Mrs. Crull will visit the city schools next week and try to get out in the county to the towns she was unable to visit this week. It will be her purpose to institute a new project each month for the children enrolled in the Junior Red Cross department. So far this year, within two weeks after schools have opened for the fall semester, the grades in eleven town schools of the county have taken up with the Junior Red Cross work and the prospects are that the enrollment in the towns will reach 100 per cent before the month is over.

Purchases Made From Morgan County Man Who Was Released From Penitentiary Last December.

Jefferson City, Sept. 18.—That the state prison board of which Dr. Cortez Enloe is chairman has had extensive business dealings with a former convict who was released from the penitentiary in December was disclosed through an examination of the records today.

The purchases were made between January and July, and were made through William McGregor, superintendent of prison farms who has been alligned closely with Dr. Enloe in the management and direction of the penitentiary.

MAKING PLANS FOR HEARINGS

AIR COMMITTEE INQUIRY GETS UNDER WAY

CALLS FOR RECORDS

Secret Meetings to Be Held Until Monday After Which Public Will Be Allowed to Attend

Washington, Sept. 18—The foundation for a searching probe of American aeronautics was laid today by the special areonauties board meeting for the first time in its permanent headquarters on capitol hill behind closed doors.

The committee requested Secretary Wilbur and acting Secretary Davis to hold departmental records in readiness for immediate inspection. Until Monday the proceedings and preparations of the board will not be open to the public.

Beginning Monday, however, the doors will be thrown open and the public allowed to sit in.

Heads of the war and navy departments will be among the first witnesses heard. Col. William Mitchell, central figure in the controversy, will be asked to personally appear before the board and substantiate his charges of incompetency and general inefficiency among leaders of the air service. Because of Mitchell's early appearance before the board, indications today point to the convening in Washington of the military court which is to try him for insubordination.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Sitting behind closed doors the President's air board plunged into preliminary investigations of naval aeronautics. The naval grand jury summoned Secretary Wilbur, who presented a vast array of information relating to the president's flying policy of the Navy.

Secretary Wilbur was closeted with the board but a short time and on leaving said the investigation was of a confidential nature that could not be discussed publicly.

In addition, Secretary Wilbur laid before the investigation secret reports of the activities of flying policies of the nations of the world. All of the matter is to be used as a basis for building up the United States naval aeronautical department.

RAILROADS AND PROSPERITY.

If the railroads gauge their prosperity by the freight loadings—and they do—why can not the nation measure its prosperity with the same rule? Before the railroads can carry more freight the farms and factories must increase their production and increased production in America is synonmous with greater prosperity.

In July more than a million cars were loaded every seven days on the railroads of the United States. Reckoning the length of a car at 32 feet this number, would make a train 6,603 miles long, or a train equal to one quarter of the earth's circumference. Thus the number of cars loaded in the thirty-one days of July would form a single train which would more than girdle the earth.

There remains no doubt as to the prosperity of the railroads and the public must accept the railroad situation as an accurate barometer of conditions in general.

As long as the freight trains run back and forth across the thousands of miles of railroad lines there will be a measure of general prosperity, there will be employment, there will be profits for capital, labor and consumer, and there will be national contentment.

An unusually effective coal strike, effective even to the extent of seriously curtailing railroad transportation, once convinced the public of the indispensable part the railroads play in our national life and demonstrated how essential the railroads are in keeping the wheels of industry moving.

GO TO WORK.

Go to work! Knowledge does not come from impressive books, but from the principle of working out these theoretical truths in actual practice.

The world is overpopulated with people who work harder killing time than they would have to work if they used time intelligently. The efforts of such people are reminiscent of the old horse once used in the brickyards to mill the clay. Round and round the circle he went, getting nowhere. A merry-go-round is a rollicking sport for children, but when adults do a lot of traveling they like to feel that they have been somewhere.

Do not wait for something to turn up and happen. Make things happen. The precious gift of the gods is initiative—the ability to start something and keep it going. In the business world this gift commands the highest wage. In all of life the initiator of new outlets for the bubbling spirit of man is a benefactor.

Everywhere today the call is for the man who can make himself busy in new ways to reach old ends. The burden of civilization is he who means well, but means well feebly.

A realist believes only what he sees while a visionary expects to eventually see what he believes.

Maybe the reason there are fewer selfmade men now than formerly is because they have quit wearing boots with boot straps.

While M. Caillaux is sojourning on this side, both the ability and the inclination of France to pay will be given careful consideration.

High up naval officers are declaring that General Mitchell is insane. Mossbackism has always been unable to see anything but weakness of mind in those who advocate a change.

A love match is one where there are many sparks but no strikes.

Some men are so wrapped up in themselves that no body else can see them.

We can't have universal peace as long as hubby drops cigar ashes on the rugs.

Senator Larry Brunk, former purchasing agent for the penitentiary, says there was an overcharge on the milk bill during recent months of several thousand dollars because it was deficient in butterfat, because it was short measure and because the price charged was above the market price. The penal board says the explanation of the dairymen is "entirely satisfactory," and it also says there has been too much news going out and that hereafter nothing will be given out except through the board's secretary. In other words, the answer to unsatisfactory news is no news.

The Philadelphia Record critically observes that if the President has a toothache the newspapers play up the fact on the front page, and "if he is almost caught in a shower the telegraph wires sizz as a flock of excited correspondents spread the important news all over the country." This may exaggerate a little, but the Record is not far wrong in its conclusion that, although theoretically disapproving of royalty, Americans betray similiar instincts to those of Europeans in their "worship of power."

Start Move 20 Years Ago to Oust Autos

Mexico, Mo., Sept. 18.—Twenty years ago this month a great movement was started here to oust the "automobile evil." Several hundred farmers signed a call for a mass meeting to check the use of motor cars.

The call for the meeting read—according to files of an old newspaper:

"We, the undersigned citizens, deeming it necessary for the safety of our families and believing that the automobile is a menace to the lives of our people and of the prosecuting of our callings, do hereby give public notice that there will be a public meeting held in Mexico at the courthouse on Saturday, September 23, at 2 o'clock p. m., to consult as to the best means of controlling this evil. And every man in Audrain who opposes the running of the auto in our city or on our public roads is respectfully urged to be present."

The movement was headed by S. E. Kendall, who at that time was county recorder. In an interview on the situation Kendall said:

"We want to avoid the shocking events which are occurring daily in places where there are many autos in use. Instead of trying to make trouble we are trying to avoid it."

Many women in the city wrote Kendall endorsing his stand on the situation. One group recommended that motor car owners use private roads if they desired to drive motor cars.

To show the futility of the effort, an announcement was made recently that more than 500,000 motor cars are in use now throughout the state. St. Louis has more than 100,000; Kansas City about 70,000 and Audrain County—where the anti-auto movement started—3,912.

THE JOLLY LITTLE GAME OF TOSSING THE PAN CAKE.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER
By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—With President Coolidge back in the White House, politics in Washington has pepped up noticeably of late.

Senators and representatives are beginning to drift in. Plans for the coming session of Congress are being discussed.

The House Ways and Means Committee is to meet Oct. 17 to adopt a tax reduction program. There'll be a $400,000,000 cut, according to Speaker Longworth. This is more than anybody has predicted yet.

Most of the cabinent members have returned to their desks.

The capital looks more like itself again. It's been a pretty dead place all summer.

President Coolidge's project for a lot of new—and much—needed—government buildings in Washington is in difficulties right from the start.

"We're willing to vote for your bill," congressional arrivals in the city are telling the president, "on condition that you agree to a hundred or two million dollars' worth of new federal buildings in our various home towns, too."

Practically none of this kind of "pork" had been dished out since 1914 and the whole country is fairly starving for some.

Paying for it, however, doesn't fit in with the presidential economy policy.

"You increased your pay," the National Federation of Federal Employes will say to Congress next winter.

"How about increasing ours?"

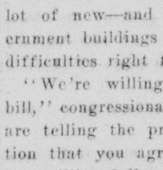
They want a minimum of $1,500 a year for grown up people in the civil service, not counting the postoffice.

Government workers never were very well paid, but before the war they could live decently at least, with due economy. Now it's a tough proposition.

The coast artillery folk are madder at Col. "Billy" Mitchell and his disciples than even the navy is.

True, the colonel pronounced them equally helpless against air attacks, but whereas Mitchell hasn't been able to prove conclusively that the navy is obsolete, as he says it is, the coast artillery hasn't been able to prove conclusively that it isn't.

Thus the coast artillery's position is more humiliating than the navy's, and it's correspondingly sore about it.



TOM SIMS SAYS

Here and there you see people wanting more happiness yet using only a small part of what they have.

Truth is great stuff. But if all of it were known practically everybody would be arrested.

That's the trouble with having too many laws. They have a tendency to arrest progress.

Spends Too Much to Eliminate Rum Row

Washington, Sept. 18.—The federal government was taken to task for spending too much money trying to eliminate rum row and not enough to stop the domestic liquor traffic, which was claimed to be much wider in scope here recently.

The fourth installment of the report of the research department of the federal Council of Churches pointed out that the government spent about $14,000,000 last year to try to keep $40,000,000 worth of liquors from coming across the borders and stated that this was done because the nation considered rum row a national scandal," not so much because of its bearing on liquor traffic but because of its effect on international opinion."

The coast guard alone got $12,000,000 to try to stop smuggling, it said.

"The total amount of smuggled liquor is not great enough to make it more than a minor phase of the enforcement problem."

On other phases of its investigation into prohibition the report turned to humor to drive home its facts of criticism.

"The home brew industry has failed both as a national sport and as a commercial enterprise.

"Withdrawal of wines on permit from bonded warehouses for sacramental purposes increased 800,000 gallons in two years. It is probably safe to say that not more than one-quarter of this wine is sacramental—the rest is sacreligious."

Real beer finds its way to the market, it said, although only four breweries are reported by the government to be in legal operation.

"The beer problem would seem to be wholly soluble, although it has been one of the scandals of the prohibition regime.

"Consumption of wine and cider is increasing, but this is not a matter for great official concern," it said.

There is an increasing effort to supply the market with moonshine now that the supply of good liquor is being exhausted, the report said.

In general, however, "the liquor traffic has been enormously reduced," the statement declared. The problem of prohibition now is chiefly a moral one, arising from widespread violations of the law.

The nation is spending $19,319,817 for federal enforcement of the prohibition law during the present fiscal year. Congress appropriated $9,649,257 for coast guard "dry navy" and $9,670,560 for the prohibition unit of the treasury department. Nearly a million more dollars will be spent by the Department of Justice in prosecuting liquor cases.

Secretary Davis in Atack on Communism

Kansas City, Sept. 18.—The idea that one must be uneducated to be a laborer is false.

And the belief that an educated man won't work as a laborer is likewise untrue.

So declared Secretary of Labor Jas. J. Davis in an address before the convention of railway carmen here.

"I find many educated men and women in the folds of labor," said Davis.

The secretary vigorously attacked communism in labor organizations and warned that advocated of bloodshed and violence must be ousted from the ranks of labor.

"I am for the great labor leaders of the country who preach the doctrines of reason—sound reason," Secretary Davis said.

The secretary expressed his opposition to convict labor, adding that prisoners should be educated "so that when they serve their sentences they will look upon society with a different view.

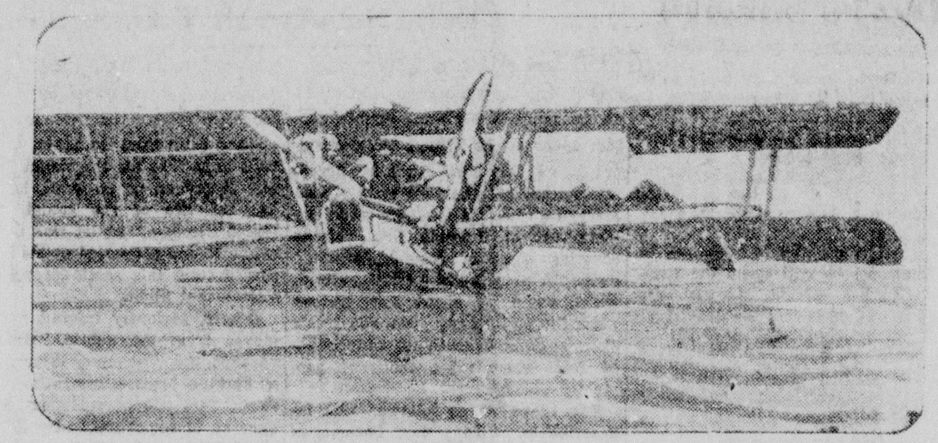
Hawaiian Flight Rescue Pictures from Honolulu by Radio



The Navy Seaplane PN-9 No. 1 in which Commander Rodgers and his men made their adventurous flight to Hawaii here is shown anchored in the harbor of Niwiliwili, island of Kinai. The photograph was rushed to Honolulu and transmitted thence 6,000 miles to New York by the Photoradiogram process of the Radio Corporation of America. The radio impulse was relayed once only, at the station in San Francisco. The overcoming of bad static conditions in the atmosphere to permit sending of recognizable pictures one-fourth around the world is considered a notable achievement by radio experts. The torn condition of the wings by the time the airship reached port is noticeable.

This picture is the unretouched copy as received by the photodiogram process of the Radio Corporation of America, sent from Honolulu to New York. Ringling Bros. Circus Tent Blows Down Here Twenty Years Ago Today

The date, "Monday, Sept. 18, 1905," is indelibly imprinted on the minds of thousands of Nodaway county people, never to be erased while memory lasts. The most shocking, nerve racking catastrophe that ever visited Maryville occurred that day when the huge tent of Ringling Bros.' circus covering acres of ground, collapsed under the pressure of a terrific storm, which came up about 3:30 o'clock when the performance was about half over, burying beneath its water-soaked folds some three thousand people.

The scene which followed was indescribable. Strong men became as babes, women fainted and were seized with hysteria, children screamed for the protection of parents who were unable to help them, the caged animals roaring in fright, added terror to the already frenzied mob, the whole forming a picture of pandemonium, vividly portrayed.

Reason, for the moment dethroned, resumed sway in a short time, however, and the people began seeking loved ones from whom they had become seperated during the few awful moments of the elements' fury. Many were brought out from under the wrecked tent unconscious and apparently lifeless, but in most instances the people thus rescued had only fainted, and were uninjured.

Among those found first was everybody's friend, poor big-hearted Charley Robinson, battered and bruised almost beyond recognition, who but a moment before was the center of a merry group of young people, enjoying the performance as only young people can. His life was sacrificed in a heroic effort to save the lives of others. When the storm broke over the tent, Charley's crowd became separated in the confusion that followed, but he clung to his mother and conducting her to a place of safety, told her to remain there while he returned to look for his sister and the remainder of his party. That was the last that was seen of him until his bleeding and unconscious form was brought out a moment later. Although not dead, it was seen at a glance that he could not survive, as his skull was crushed like an egg shell. An ambulance was at once summoned and he was hastily conveyed to St. Francis Hospital, where the operation of trepanning was performed by the surgeons, to relieve the pressure of the crushed skull from the brain, with the faint hope that his life might be saved. It proved of no avail, however, and the life of the genial, wholesouled "Robbie," as he was familiarly known and addressed by his friends, passed from this earth forever at 11 o'clock that night.

Others, seriously injured, were removed from the debris. Hundreds, perhaps, received minor injuries, such as sprains, bruises, lacerations of the flesh, etc., not of sufficient importance as to require the attention of a physician.

Those who witnessed the awful spectacle and retained their faculties sufficiently to observe their surroundings clearly, say that when the wind first struck the tent, the long circle of poles which support the canvass, jumped many feet from the ground, as if propelled by some invisible giant hand. As the storm increased in intensity, these poles were raised high in the air and thrashed about like mighty flails, striking flat to the ground everything within reach.

The day was one of the most disagreeable of the year. It rained intermittenly, with more or less severity, all day, and it was freely expressed on the streets early in the morning that not a corporal's guard would be in town to attend the show, if indeed a performance would be given at all. As the day advanced, however, the crowd augmented all trains were loaded to the guards with human freight, and by 11 o'clock, when the parade went through town under umbrellas, the usual circus crowd was here, expectant, drenched to the skin, and—happy. Immediately after dinner the crowd started pell mell to the grounds, and it is said that when the performance began fully 5000 people were assembled under the huge tent. Many hearing the thunder from the approaching storm went out, leaving perhaps 3000 people in the tent when it collapsed.

Edward Booth of Wilcox sustained a broken back. He had sought refuge with his wife and daughter under a wagon, which was overturned, pinning him to the ground. (He died several weeks later).

Very Few Observe 138th Birthday of U. S. Constitution

(By United Press)

Almost unnoticed the 138th birthday of the United States constitution passed Thursday. The constitution was ratified by a convention of the thirteen original states at Philadelphia, September 17, 1787.

Only a few patriotic societies and the Kiwanis Clubs, an organization of businessmen, held observances.

Boys Build Own Laboratory For Study of Science

Marvin Westfall, a student in the State Teacher's College, and the 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Westfall, living on East Sixth street, has constructed something well worthy of his age—a laboratory of science, marked on the door "private." The amateur chemist says "its just a hobby" but those that know Marvin are not letting it pass at that—to them it is the beginning of a profession that for a number of years has been finding root in his system.

It required a summer of work. It was a "lone scout" game but interesting to the youth. He originated the idea, drew the plans of his seven by eight building, selected the plot most desirable in his yard, placed the foundation, built the laboratory and arranged the interior convenient to any amateur chemist. It is modern in every possible way with lights, water and the latest in chemical equipment. Every time he sees a chance of improving it he acts in that capacity. Instead of spending his money for things of no value he gives it toward the purchase of powders and liquids.

During his senior year in the Maryville High School in 1923, he served as president of the Science Club, the most distinct honor a student of science in the local school could hold.

Herbert Hudson, a student in the Maryville High School, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hudson, is assisting Marvin in the laboratory experiments and they are applying themselves to a strictly educational pastime dealing in the most complicated theories and experiments of the scientific world.

THE BUG UNDER THE CHIP

Comment on the Uniform international Sunday School Lesson for September 20, 1925.
Read 1 Thessalonians.
Wm. Southern, Jr.

There are many people who are always looking for the bug under the chip. They can not understand how anybody can be unselfish. If a man devotes his time and his life and his money to some enterprise for the welfare of his home town or his country, these people are going around, snooping and peeping, trying to find out the motive.

No great man ever escaped from this form of suspicion. Washington was accused of using his power as President to enhance his own personal fortunes. Every great president has had the same experience in one form or another. It was this streak of human nature in men which President Wilson met at every turn.

It may surprise some of you to learn that the Apostle Paul was followed all his life by slanders and accusations. His life was made miserable for years because of the lies told about him. Not much of this appears in the records we find in the New Testament but a little shows here and there. Paul usually met these slanders with silence but on one occasion when he was assured of the love of a bunch of his friends in a town where the slanderers had been particularly active he mentioned the fact and took the trouble to deny the slanders. This course rarely ever pays and Paul only indulged it in his letter to the Thessalonians.

Paul had founded the church in Thessalonica where he preached for some time and where a great number of devout Greek gentiles became Christians and a few o f the leading club women of the town. Paul had to leave Thessalonica and went to Athens and then to Corinth. Jews at Beroea and other places were so bitter that they tried to break up the church at Thessalonica. They sneered at Paul, the idea of a man doing all this work for nothing. This Paul no doubt gets big pay for all this work. You give him large sums of money and you do not know what he does with it. Then they told stories of his early days. They recalled the time when he persecuted Christians and quoted the old saying, "A leopard can not change his spots." I have no doubt they repeated the story which was current at the time in Iconium. They said Paul had broken up a marriage between Thamyris, a nobleman of that city, and Thecla a beautiful woman who left her home and broke off her engagement because of Paul's preaching.

No doubt Paul felt pretty badly about it. These stories had come to him in Corinth. Friends, who like to roll a sweet morsel of gossip under the tongue, told Paul he had lost all his friends and that the Thessalonians had abandoned Christianity.

Then one day when Paul was bluest he heard a knock on the door and there stood Silas and Timothy, the two friends he had left at Thessalonica. After the greetings they began to tell him with a rush of words about his church and his friends and the loving message they had sent him. From the depths of gloom and discouragement, if such a spirit as that of Paul could ever be discouraged, Paul rose to the heights of Joy. The greatest joy any of us can have is the knowledge that our friends believe in us. To this incident were are indebted for the first letter Paul ever wrote which became a part of the New Testament, 1 Thessalonians, written to this new congregation only a few months after he had organized it. This letter is believed by students to have been the first part of the New Testament ever written and its authorship is placed about A. D. 53. The Gospels were not written until many years afterward but are placed first in the book. Read this little letter, it only contains five short chapters. In it Paul pours out his heart to his friends in his joy that they do not believe the scandals and gossip about him.

To those who study the Bible and want to understand how and why it came to be made a printed record it may be an interesting thought that the epistles, if perhaps we except James, were never intended for the use to which they were put. The story of how the epistles we know as 1 Thessalonians came to be written as related in this letter, shows that it was written just as you and I would write to a group of friends today under similiar circumstances.

The tale bearer and the scandal monger are the most despicable persons in the world. Especially is this true in a church if scandal can be any worse in one place than another.

Locks Her Baby in Chicken Coop

When Mrs. Victor Style, of El Paso, left her three-year-old son, Juan, at home alone while she was at work downtown, the chickens pecked his face as he was playing in the yard. So the mother decided the thing to do was to lock the child instead of the chickens in a chicken coop. Neighbors became so indignant that one of them offered to adopt the child. City health officials obtained the mother's consent to an adoption.

Buker Now Preacher

They call him Rev. Buker nowadays, though you may remember him better as Ray Buker, former Bates College track star and Illinois A. C. brilliant. Ray is combining running with preaching, being pastor of a church at Sabbatus, Me. Likes both jobs, too.

In politics it is a fixed rule among some of the bosses to defeat men for office by getting something on them. When a candidate appears who looks like he might be dangerous to the gang, trusted lieutenants are sent out and told to dig into his past life and find something which may be used to disgrace him and defeat him. There is a kind of a mind which believes nobody is honest and that every man has his price. You of course know that the person declaring this doctrine is not honest and has his price.

It is even hard to get big men, men who would make splendid public officials, to run for office. They refuse to put themselves up as a traget for political mudslinging and abuse. No matter how clean they may be, no matter how fine a life they may have lived the selfish, unscrupulous men who desire to hold and retain power and who do not want honest men in office will drag them down with lies.

And we who repeat these scandals, we who whisper the latest salacious morsel about those in public life, we who say we do not believe it, but repeat it just the same, we are the ones who make possible the ruin. You can hardly blame men for refusing to stand up and be made a target.

This was what Paul met from the time he became converted on the road to Damascus until he died. His old record was thrown up to him, his remarkable adventures were denied, he was accused of everything which could come to the minds of bitter religionists, and a religious fight is nastier and more bitter than a political fight.

I believe there are hundreds of men who do not join the Christian church today because they are afraid. They are not cowards. They are at heart Christians, but they are human, they know they will make mistakes and do things a Christian should not do and they fear that they will be sneered at as sissies, and church members proclaiming themselves to be what they are not, and their motives impugned. It takes courage to be a Christian sometimes. Courage gave us Paul's life and his work.

If you think there is a bug under your chip turn the chip over and let in the light. If there are any bugs there they will scamper in all directions and hunt other dark places.

Your God-Given mind which raises you above the other animals and brings your soul into communication with your God, is too valuable to be cluttered up with a lot of vulgar stories, mean scandals and lies.

Security Pact Negotiations Futile Unless Germany Granted Arbitration

By J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press)

Negotiations for a security pact among the Europeans powers, to include Germany, are doomed to failure, however, for the nations involved may go in signing paper agreements. The German government realizes that it has in its own hands the final power concerning any guarantee for future European peace. It will not relinquish this power at the pleasure of the victors in the late war.

The problem of the future of the Rhinelands, which in reality is the basic factor of European peace, is playing only a subordinate part in the present security negotiations. Since the failure of France to subdue Germany by invading the Ruhr, less and less has been said among European diplomats about the Rhine for France has shown she cannot control the Rhine situation by direct action. Her sole way of holding her own in Alsace and Lorraine and the Rhine border is to keep Germany surrounded by potential enemies. Once the Germans can break this ring and isolate France on the European continent, Germany's two to one manpower will have its way along the Rhine.

Silesian Mines.

European security, therefore, is bound up with the security of France's two allies on Germany's flank, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. If Germany cannot be forced to pledge herself to arbitrate all of her future differences with these two nations, security for Europe will be non-existent. Once the possibility of war between Germany and Poland or Germany and Czecho-Slovakia is made legitimate, France will find herself in an indefensible position. If Germany and Poland quarrel, for instance, over the Silesian mines which were taken from Germany and given to Poland as part treaty of peace, Germany must be forced to arbitrate the difficulty if France is to save her eastern boundary.

Otherwise, the Germans may bring about hostilities with the moral issue on their own side, and France will be unable to go to Poland's assistance without alienating world sympathy.

If such a condition were to arise, in the not very distant future, when Germany's military efficiency is restored, the Germans outnumbering both the Poles and the French, should be able to establish their mastery first along the Polish border and then along the Rhine. This factor in the security situation is making the present negotiations centre about German arbitration treaties with Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

Under no circumstances will Germany sign an arbitration treaty compelling her to submit any disputes she may have with Poland or Czecho-Slovakia to a packed court. It is possible that the Germans may accept compulsory arbitration; but coupled with any such agreement Germany must be given the possibility of getting a favorable decision.

Once this possibility is conceded, eventually a decision supporting Berlin, in a vitally important dispute will be forthcoming and then, the onus for what follows will be upon Poland or Czecho-Slovakia France's allies and not upon Germany. A conflict resulting under such circumstances would give the Germans all the advantage of a moral initiative, and it is because Germany started the last war indifferent to the moral initiative that she lost the conflict. The next war will not find the Germans making the same mistake, unless all present indications are wrong.

Moral Values

Germany is conducting her negotiations concerning a security pact in a spirit which shows a high outward appreciation in Berlin of moral values. The Germans have accepted arbitration in principle, and are seeking to put on France the responsibility for making arbitration conditions so unfair as to justify Berlin in refusing to accept them. Germany wants the League of Nation to become associated with arbitration enforcement, but declines to consent to the allied powers, who control the Council of the League, having the final say. There is a growing group of small powers in the League sympathetic to Germany. If representatives of these nations were to become arbiters, Germany would be in a favorable position.

Certainly, it cannot be expected that the Germans will agree to arbitration if the allies are to appoint the members of the court in perpetuity, or if France is to control the court's character by any other means. This is the difficulty which the negotiators of the security pact are seeking to overcome. Their problem, in reality, is insoluble. France and Germany apparently, must fight it out again, and perhaps yet again, until both conclude that neither can be top dog in perpetuity. When that time comes, they will reach an agreement equable to both, and not until then there will be a real security pact for Europe.

A GROUCH NOT WANTED.

There is nothing so harmful to success as being a grouch. Stomach, liver and intestinal troubles make one grouchy. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy will help overcome these and usually gives complete results.

Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Returns Alleged Robber to Omaha

Jefferson City, Sept. 18.—The Supreme Court today ordered Lee Flournoy, formerly of Kansas City but now under arrest at Springfield, to be returned to Omaha, Neb., to face a charge of robbing the Security State Bank there. The bank was robbed of $10,500 on March 5.

The court in ordering Flournoy to Omaha refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus which had been filed by his attorneys.

Cleo Yehle Heads H. S. Science Club

The Science Club of the Maryville High School met this morning, with the sponsor, Mrs. Vern Manley, and elected Cleo Yehle, the son of Mrs. Conrad Yehle, as president of that organization.

Other officers elected are:

Vice-President, Elsie Wright; Secretary and Treasurer—Ora Petty.

The program of the year will include lectures on interesting scientific topics but most of the time will be devoted to the showing of educational motion picture films, which has been the practice of the club for two years. Many Will Ship Corn Out of County

The Barnard Bulletin had the following about the corn crop in that community:

A large acreage was planted in corn and, taking the hill land and the river valleys, it is thought that the yield will run higher this year than in several years past. Some of the territory was hit by hail, causing great loss. Some of the late corn was hurt by the dry weather, but, taking the community around Barnard as a whole, the yield will be larger than it has been for many years.

The past season a great amount of corn has been shipped into Barnard because of the short crop last season. It is predicted by some that there will be around 100,000 bushels of corn shipped out of the community this season. The pig crop is short and stock hogs are scarce and high.

The question of whether or not there will be much feeding in the community this fall depends largely on the price of corn as well as the price of stock hogs and stock cattle. Many feeders think that because of the shortage of corn in other places, this crop will sell for around 80 to 90 cents a bushel, and with the present outlook on the price of stock, feeders may sell corn rather than gamble with the future market.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

A fine Sunday School last Sunday with a good audience for the preaching service. We were especially appreciative of the new recruits in the choir. We will expect them there every Sunday, as well as the old members.

The sermon for Sunday morning will be entitled "Speaking the Truth in Love." The night service will begin at 8 o'clock. The sermon will be on the subject, "A Carnal Commandment, vs. An Endless Life." Come to this service. We believe you will not be disappointed. We hope to have some special music for both services.

GOOD HOPE.

Leman Morehouse, our road overseer, says he is getting along fine with the road work this fall and some of the roads sure need a lot of extra work before the hard winter, that has been predicted, comes on. The recent rains has caused the work to come to a stand still for a few days.

The kiddies are all rejoicing over the fact that school has begun and nothing but compliments and much praise are heard when speaking of the several teachers which we consider very fine. We want to wish both teachers and pupils a successful school year.

Edgar Miller and Harold Bebout hauled lumber from Hopkins yesterday to begin the rebuilding of the home of Mrs. Anna Bebout that was destroyed by fire about two weeks ago. Mrs. Bebout and Harold have been staying with her daughter, Mrs. Abe Miller and Mr. Miller since the fire until the last few days, they have fixed a tent on the place so they can be near their work.

Mrs. Ruth Clymens Fitch who spent a week with home-folks Mr. and Mrs. Gene Clymens and family returned home near Kansas City, Mo., last Monday P. M. Her husband, Mr. Fitch, has the supt. of a boys home, as we understand, and they are to live among the boys.

Joe Miller is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ray Proctor and Mr. Proctor, near Pickering yesterday and today.

Mrion Crawford, John Gray, Henry Brown and Charlie Wallace shipped hogs today and cattle were also sent out through the Farmers' Union in Hopkins, by Wayne Brand, Mrs. Laura Morehouse, Gaylen Ulmer and Ham Lowery.

Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Harris spent Saturday night and Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gray east of Hopkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hoy had their children and families for Sunday dinner guests, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft, Clearmont; Mr. and Mrs. Loy Blanchard, Hopkins and Mr. and Mrs. Beaver from Burlington Junction and son, Max, at home.

Andy Morehouse sold to Glen Bradley, Clarinda a bunch of hogs to be delivered Friday a. m., Glen coming after them with a truck.

Star in "Go Straight" Would Be Architect

No sociologist has yet fathomed the peculiar twist in successful men, who, in spite of fame and fortune, aspire to work in professions other than those in which they have reached achievement.

Owen Moore, one of the screen's stars, who takes an important role in "Go Straight," that appears at the Empire Theater tonight and Saturday, regrets he did not become an architect. "Acting," he says, "is a wonderful profession but the action is soon forgotten."

Chicago Closing Grain Review

Chicago, Sept. 18.—More values were reached in today's session on the board of trade. Weakened corn was the outstanding feature.

Wheat fluctuated erratically in lower levels, the entire session.

Bearish sentiments predominated in corn. Improved movements and a splendid crop outlook brought sellers into the pit.

Oats sold off in sympathy with other grains.

Resumption of short covering rallied provisions.

MANY JOIN TO FIGHT CRIME

LEAGUE HAS DEFINITE PROGRAM PLANNED.

MOVE IS STATE-WIDE

Is Considered of Vital Importance To Clearing Up of Lax Conditions, Especially Among Young.

St. Louis, Sept. 13.—The opening effort of the Missouri Welfare League to extend its organization to every town and city in Missouri with a program for the prevention of delinquency and elimination of crime, has revealed the fact that thousands of Missouri citizens are aroused over the situation and are rallying to the support of the movement. This state-wide program of the League is considered of vital importance to the clearing up of present lax conditions.

This is according to a statement of the league, based on a response to its appeal for support received from more than one hundred towns and counties over the state.

That delinquency among boys and girls of the state has increased to an alarming extent, due to lax conditions and to many particular environments, and that a thorough state-wide effort is needed to eliminate the causes of delinquency and uproot the weeds of crime that are growing broadside is the opinion of prominent men and women in every section of the state, according to letters being received at the league's state headquarters, 1300 Central National Bank building.

"The cause and frequency of crime among young offenders, both boys and girls," the statement says, "is due to lax conditions supported and permitted—even encouraged—by public sentiment of the present. Some contributing causes are: The weakening of high ideals, the disintegration of moral fiber, the lessening influence of churches and schools on account of the increased strength of outside appeals, the morbid emotionalism of picture shows featuring crimes and criminals, the commtrcialized dance halls, unguarded and without proper supervision, the absence of wholesome playgrounds and the absence of policewomen to do probation work in safeguarding those on the brink before they go over."

"These causes are general over the entire state, and over the entire country, for that matter. Each separate community has its own particular problems that must be met. A state-wide campaign of education already begun by the league to reach every town and county, will create the public sentiment needed for the remedying of conditions and bring necessary support, financial and otherwise, to the program aimed to reach every phase of the situation."

Over 5,000 letters have been sent out by the league to leading citizens in the various counties asking for contributions to the work, in an endeavor to raise as quickly as possible the advance fund needed immediately for the movement. Committees are being set up in each community through which the league will function in community matters and to lend a state-wide organized strength to its efforts. These committees are being asked to aid in the raising of the fund needed for the work.

Number Persons in United States' Prisons Nearly Doubled Since 1921

Washington, Sept. 18.—The number of persons in prison has nearly doubled since 1921 and prohibition has been responsible for it, the Department of Justice disclosed.

At the same time the preliminary annual report of the Internal Revenue bureau showed that the cost of federal prohibition enforcement under its jurisdiction for the 12 months ended last June 30 was $9,013,000.

A third agency, the department of research and education of the Federal Council of Churches, in a report asserted that prohibition had broken the strangle hold of the saloon on American politics, although confirming the reports of an increase in crime since liquor was outlawed in 1920.

Government prisoners at the three federal prisons at Atlanta, Leavenworth and McNeil's Island increased from 3,011 five years ago to 5,249, the Department of Justice said. Smuggling made up three-fourths of the crimes causing the increase. The number sentenced this year for breaking the liquor laws was 647.

The only other class of federal prisoners to increase considerably were the violators of the postal laws, who increased in numbers from 360 in 1921 to 705 this year.

The expenditure of $9,013,000 by the Internal Revenue Bureau was offset by the government's "profit" of taxes on distilled spirits, which brought in $25,902,820 through the same bureau. This revenue figure, however, was a decrease of $1,677,560 from the 1924 figure.

The Federal Council of Churches' survey, the third installment of which was given out, reported that crime in general had increased and that arrests for intoxication have increased from 43 per 1,000 population in 1920 to 67 in 1924. The arrests in 1923 were 87 for each 1,000 persons. These figures were made from a survey of 185 cities of the country. The report pointed out that a post-war increase in crime would be expected. The criminal situation in the United States so far as crimes of violence are concerned is worse than in any other civilized country, the report added.

Conditions in settlement neighborhoods in which many of the manual workers live have improved, it was said.

"There has been less drinking; family life has improved—in some cases in quite a remarkable degree; children are better fed and clothed and family ties have been strengthened; neighborhood disorders have been much reduced," the report says.

"It must be admitted that there is more drinking in families and among the young in some localities; that the law is widely violated; that the bootlegger is getting rich, that many old soaks have been sent to an early if not untimely grave; that the individual liberty has been restrained and hypocrisy increased.

"But we must remember that every great reform has been won only after many years of effort and with some temporary, if not permanent, losses."

The automobile, not the hip flask, is responsible for drinking among young people, the report said.

The statement that successful encouragement of prohibition would tend to increase the use of drugs was flatly denied. The physiology of alcoholism is quite different from that of drug addiction, it was said.

An attitude of intelligent sympathy toward the prohibition law must be built up if it is to be generally observed, the report concluded.
